Council Goes in for Music, Buys City a New Piano

Appropriation of $175 Is Set Aside for Its Purchase

ONE OPPOSES ACT

Mosquito Campaign to Start Next Week in Hope

Tra la la! The city council went musical Tuesday night. A new piano was purchased for this city on the recommendation of the Friday Music club.

An appropriation of $175 was made to purchase the piano from the Brooks-Mays company of Texarkana.

The vote was 7 to 1. Roy Anderson being the only member of the council not musical-minded.

It was said the piano would be placed in Hope city hall and dedicated as public property.

If any musical programs have been arranged by the council, they were not announced.

The police report for the month of May was filed with the council showing 32 arrests and total fines assessed $422.42—of which $165 was collected in cash. $98 worked out on streets while two cases were appealed to circuit court.

No reduction was made in fees for domino and pool tables after a motion was made to reduce the fee from $10 to $5.

Mayor Graves read a letter from Hope Library association which asked for donation. No action was taken.

W. S. Atkins, city attorney, spoke in behalf of the association.

A motion by Alderman Henry was carried giving the council authority to fix the salary and fees for the plumbing and electrical inspector. His compensation will be fixed at the next meeting of the council.

Dr. P. B. Carrigan reported that the mosquito campaign in Hope would be started next week.

Better Housing Program Will Be Started in Hope

R. V. Herndon Heads Committee to Push Campaign Here

WILL SET UP OFFICE

To Canvass Residential Districts to Stimulate Interest

Robert B. Babbitt of the state FERA office at Little Rock, announced here Wednesday that a permanent office would be established in Hope to negotiate loans in the better housing campaign which is being renewed here under the federal housing administration.

Appointment of a local committee to push the program was announced as: R. V. Herndon, chairman; E. S. Greening, J. W. Black, Oliver Williams and C. C. Lewis.

Renewed interest has been manifested as result of two recent meetings here which were attended by Mr. Babbitt, Associate State Director Bennett and a Mr. Harris, field representative of the state office.

Location of the office to be set up and maintained will probably be announced Thursday, as quickly as a suitable place is found. Mr. Babbitt also announced that 10 local persons would be hired to canvass the residential districts of Hope to explain the better housing program in detail.

"The state housing administration feels gratified over the interest being taken by progressive business men of Hope, and feel that much good can be had by citizenry in taking full advantage of the federal housing act, which is the most progressive legislation enacted in many years and is the outstanding advancement of the Roosevelt administration," Mr. Babbitt said.

Housing Day June 15
WASHINGTON.—With definite arrangements already made in 29 states to break ground on model-homes projects as a part of the observance of National Better Housing Day, June 15, scores of additional projects are being reported daily to the Federal Housing Administration. It is hoped that by June 15 approximately 2,000 new dwellings will be started.

Reports of model homes to be constructed following ground-breaking ceremonies on June 15 have been received from various cities in the following states: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington, and West Virginia. Reports from other states are being received daily.

Local better housing committees are sponsoring the movement in various localities in co-operation with banks, lumber companies, building-materials dealers, newspapers, radio stations, and industrial concerns for the purpose of focusing public attention on home building and home ownership and to stimulate a revival of new construction. In general, model homes will be of such construction, both as to materials and workmanship, that their later sale may be financed through the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Debt Committee to Meet at Prescott
The Farm Debt Adjustment Committee of Nevada County will have a meeting at the courthouse Thursday, June 6th, at 10 a. m. All members are urged to be present, and visitors are cordially invited.

The king of Normandy big-eaters, Charles VI, consumed 2½ pounds of fish, 2½ pounds of chicken, 2½ pounds of mutton, white beans, a whole cheese, 29 assorted pieces of cheese, six apple tarts, two bottles of Alsatian wine, two bottles Burgundy, and four quarts of apple cider, to win the title. Vienot weighs 326 pounds.

Food Demonstration Hempstead Lumber Co.

Mrs. Anne O'Connor, special demonstrator for the Frigidaire Corporation is in Hope conducting a series of food and refrigeration demonstrations in the storerooms of the Hempstead County Lumber Co. She will give her last demonstration Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. O'Connor was the first refrigerator demonstrator to be connected with the Frigidaire corporation in the south and has been doing this type of work for them since they first started building refrigerators. She is given credit for being the first person to make a successful ice cream in a mechanical refrigerator.

Mrs. O'Connor stressed the fact that the type of demonstrations she gives are of interest to all housewives, regardless of whether they own a mechanical refrigerator or not.

Probably the demonstration that created the most interest among those who attended Tuesday sessions, was the special hot weather cooking in which a complete meal is prepared in the morning and is kept fresh and tasty for serving in the evening. Mrs. O'Connor explains this in complete detail.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—So many things are to be said about the Guffey coal bill and the bituminous strike called for June 16 that it's difficult to decide where to begin.

In desperation rather than arraigning the United Mine Workers and a tonnage majority of the industry waded clubs at the administration and congress. They demanded the bill's passage as the only way of averting this strike of 450,000 men in the most important of natural resources industries, imperiling operation of railroads, utilities, and factories.

The bill probably is a forerunner of other industrial legislation to be demanded jointly by employers and labor leaders who insist on codes to hold up prices and wages. They likely also to "hold up" the public.

Bituminous coal is one of those industries where overproduction and cut-throat competition are inevitable without regulation and which exist only at the expense of wages.

Two-thirds of coal production cost is labor cost. Only government control can stabilize this industry. For a while it was able to sustain

As Rivers of Death Raged

Flood Victims Are Identified

Bodies of 114 Recovered at San Pedro, Mexico

MEXICO, D. F.—(AP)—The bodies of 114 victims of the floods which swept down on the nearby village of San Pedro and surrounding communities had been identified Wednesday.

Searchers attacked the mud-enraged wreckage in the hope of recovering additional bodies, but officials said there was little prospect that the exact number ever would be known.

Many bodies were taken from the ruins of San Pedro's church, where the greatest death toll occurred, and buried before the official check was begun. Others were believed to have been covered so deeply with debris and mud that they never can be found.

Official estimates placed the number of dead at approximately 400. President Lazaro Cardenas visited the stricken area and ordered that the bodies be made for the widowed and orphaned survivors of the disaster. Diplomats of Central American countries and Columbia opened a fund to aid the inhabitants of the flooded villages, most of whom are Indians.

Rental Money to Nevada Farmers

$31,674.09 Received for First Payment on 1935 Contracts

Checks numbering 1,585 and amounting to $31,674.09 have been received for Nevada county farmers, J. L. Hiller, Nevada county agent announced Wednesday.

These represent first rental payment on 75 per cent of the 1935 contracts. The remaining contracts will be paid as approved in Washington. Payment on contracts entered into for the first time in 1935 will necessarily be delayed some time.

These checks will be delivered at various points over the county as follows:

Wednesday, June 5: Clancy, 2:30 p. m. Thursday, June 6: Bluff City, 9 to 12 a. m. New Hope, 2 p. m. Liberty church 3:30 p. m. Friday, June 7: Greenville, 9 a. m. Waterloo, 1 p. m. Willisville 2:30 p. m.

Saturday, June 8: Prescott 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday, June 10: Carolina, 9:30 a. m. Rossion, 1 p. m. Cale, 3:30 p. m. Tuesday, June 11: Falcon, 9:30 a. m. Bodeau, 1 p. m.

Wednesday, June 12: Emmet 9 a. m. Sutton 1:30 p. m. Laneburg 3:30 p. m.

A card will be mailed each producer notifying him where and when to call for his check. Checks not delivered at the community centers will be held in the county agent's office until called for.

Plans Complete for DeQueen Meet

Foreign War Soldiers to Hold Session Next Sunday

DEQUEEN, Ark.—(AP)—With the backing of a double-header baseball game between the DeQueen club and the Barksdale Field aviators of Shreveport for Sunday, practically all arrangements for the fourth annual Veterans of Foreign Wars have been completed, according to Robert A. Gammill, commander of the local El Gordin post.

The Barksdale team has indicated it will fly here in army planes for the game, which will follow the barbecue to be held at noon.

Two council and post officers' meetings are scheduled for Sunday afternoon, both executive sessions, and the annual memorial service will be held Sunday night.

A joint session of the VFW and ladies' auxiliary will be held Monday morning at the Sevier county courthouse. Mayor John T. Owen will deliver the address of welcome, to which responses will be made by Mrs. Nellie Bennett Womack, department president of the auxiliary, and W. C. Weisner, state commander.

Greetings will then be heard from representatives of the D. A. R., United Confederate Veterans, UDC, Spanish War Veterans, SPW auxiliary American Legion and auxiliary.

Other speakers for the morning session will be Mrs. Gladys Mounsey, national senior vice president of the auxiliary; Scott P. Eguys, national chief of staff; Captain A. Long of Shreveport and Sherman W. Eager, department commander of Oklahoma.

Alcohol Kills 2 College Students

Eight Others Ill From Fluid Stolen From Chemistry Building

SHERMAN, Texas.—(AP)—Two Austin college students died Tuesday as a result of drinking wood alcohol, and eight others were ill, though not seriously, Wednesday.

Durwood Newman, 19, of Athens, died in convulsions early Tuesday morning, and James Garrett, 20, also of Athens, died shortly after noon.

Several of the boys admitted to E. B. Tucker, president of the college, that, as a college prank, they broke into the chemistry building Sunday night, and took a quantity of the alcohol. They thought it regular alcohol, he said, and drank it. Tucker, said the fluid was wood alcohol.

Newman and Garrett were ill Monday, and several of the others did not feel well. But they said their condition was due to something they had eaten.

Physicians called Tuesday morning when Newman and Garrett went into convulsions, declared they could have saved their lives if they had known Monday what was the matter with them.

Newman was a star basketball player of the Kangaroo freshman squad last season, and was a candidate for an end position on the 1935 football team. Garrett also was a basketball and football player.

Woman Killed in Shooting Spree

Mrs. Clifton McDaniels Dead at El Dorado—Another Hurt

EL DORADO.—(AP)—One woman was shot to death while she slept, another was probably fatally wounded and two others were hurt in a shooting spree here early Wednesday.

Officers said that Iver Tollison, 30, shot and killed Mrs. Clifton McDaniels, 27, then turned and beat his wife, 27, and their son, five.

Tollison, officers said, then attempted to end his own life with a butcher knife.

Mrs. J. H. Purifoy and Miss Mary Landers of Camden, sisters of Mrs. Tollison, were also in the house of the killer, but escaped injury.

Preacher Will Face Jury Trial

Waives Hearing on Charge of Slaying Police Chief

ORANGE, Texas.—(AP)—His ankles shackled and his wrists handcuffed, the Rev. Edgar Eskridge, militant Baptist minister accused of slaying Police Chief Ed J. Reilly, was brought back here Tuesday from Louisiana.

The towering former pastor of the First Baptist church and ex-federal prohibition agent waived extradition at a hearing Tuesday at De Ridder, La., he had been held there since his arrest several hours after the slaying here last week, and was immediately started back here for trial.

There was no demonstration when the pastor arrived. Eskridge was immediately placed in a cell.

Sheriff W. P. Brown said the trip from De Ridder, about 80 miles from here, was without incident. The sheriff was the target of the crusading minister in many of his previous charging widespread violation of the law in Orange county, and Eskridge had fought extradition until Tuesday on the grounds, he said, that he would not be given a fair trial here.

The grand jury has been working on Eskridge's case this week, and it was expected to report on it shortly.

New York Team to Play Here Thursday

The Hope negro baseball team will play the New York Tigers at Oaklawn park Thursday afternoon. The game starts at 3:30 o'clock.

The New York team, on a tour through Dixie, was scheduled here by Joe T. Jackson of the Hope team. The locals have played six games this season, winning five against one defeat.

Six Are Sought for Abduction of Weyerhaeuser Boy

Search Is Concentrated in the Portland and Seattle Area

HUNT BOOTLEGGERS

"Big Shot" Liquor Peddler Believed Brains in Plot

TACOMA, Wash.—The names of the six men who kidnaped George Weyerhaeuser, 9, and collected $200,000 for his safe return to his millionaire parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Weyerhaeuser, are known to the department of justice, it was learned Wednesday.

Search is concentrated in Seattle and Portland for five of them—local men—and is spread through the Midwest for the sixth, a minor figure in the old Barker-Karpis gang.

The "low-voiced nervous" man who passed one of the $20 ransom bills at Huntington, Ore., in exchange for a railway ticket to Salt Lake City, is the old Karpis gangster, police and department of justice agents said. He is sought also for apart in the kidnapping of Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul, and his presence with the Tacoma gang presumably gave it the "Karpis flavor" that directed first suspicion to that killer and kidnaper.

Karpis Gang Named
The Karpis gangster is the only one who has fled from the Pacific northwest, federal agents believe.

The "pot-bellied" man described in police broadcasts as a former Tacoma bootlegger who once operated a still near Issaquah, Wash., where George was released Saturday.

The erstwhile bootlegger is probably the "egoist" signer of the ransom note. Most authorities think so. He is described as the "brains" of the plot.

His home faces the Weyerhaeuser home and is now under guard. The "pot-bellied" man is believed to have supplied the Weyerhaeusers with liquor when he was in that business.

This man is said to be a drug addict. Police were trying to connect his habits with the disappearance of R. T. Cartier, Tacoma druggist, and large stores of narcotics from the druggist's stock about a week before the kidnapping. It was believed the narcotics were taken to the gang's hideout and that Cartier was taken along because he recognized the thieves.

The names of four other suspects are known. They are believed in Seattle or in a hideout in the woods surrounding Fugate Sound. There may have been one or two other men involved, federal men said, but their names are not known at present.

Descriptions of his captors provided by young Weyerhaeuser fit those of three of the suspects, it was learned.

First Ransom Bill
TACOMA, Wash.—(AP)—The trail of George Weyerhaeuser's $200,000 kidnapers warmed with discovery of the passing of the first ransom bill in eastern Oregon, and the statement of a Justice Department spokesman that the case will "break wide open in 48 hours."

The assertion concerning the "break" came only a short time after the first ransom bill in the kidnapping came to light.

This case will break wide open in 48 hours," the spokesman said. "The ransom money is loose now."

Heads of his belief that "a local gang—by that I mean Seattle and Tacoma men—was responsible."

Reports another ransom bill had

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Neglect Dental Care, and Cavities Grow.

Are you one of the thousands who keep from going to the dentist for fear he'll find a mouth full of cavities? If so, you are merely delaying the inevitable and making conditions worse for yourself.

Nature has granted you 32 teeth, yet, if you are an average man, 11 of these teeth are involved in disease, not counting fillings that are already in place. This figure is obtained from examination of thousands of men in the white collar class in New York.

When the average man is first examined by a dentist, he learns that four or five of his teeth are beginning to decay. Twenty-eight per cent of his teeth are decayed or missing without replacements.

Even when you visit the dentist regularly, you will discover that your teeth require some attention. Studies made by the Committee on the Costs of Medical Care show that only 25 per cent of the people of the United States receive systematic dental care, and that the annual cost a person in this group is about $8.90.

The remaining 75 per cent of our people receive little or no dental care, and their average annual expenditure for dental service is about $2 a person.

The number of dentists in proportion to population varies through the United States. In New York City, for instance, there is one dentist to every 164 persons, while in Mississippi there is one dentist to every 10,000 people. In California there are more dentists, in proportion to the number of people, than there are in any other part of the country.

Of course, a mouth full of good sound teeth is not absolutely necessary for adequate chewing of food and for the other purposes for which teeth are used by civilized man, but the more nearly the average man reaches the perfect condition, the better it is for his health.

Unfortunately, the majority of Americans have not learned the importance of proper care of the teeth, although, in general dental care in the United States is far superior to that elsewhere in the world. Dental care, however, is an expense for which the average person has not learned to save as he now saves for many luxuries in his family budget.

When enough people realize the importance of sound teeth for health, they are likely to make the necessary provision for securing the dentistry they need.

A BOOK A DAY

King George's Reign as Camera Sees It—Here's a Book of Pictures in Mark Royal Jubilee

The British crown is a symbol, and its present jubilee celebration is a poignant designed to reach the emotions through its appeal to the eye; and so perhaps the best way to follow the whole thing is to look at the picture record of King George's eventful reign.

The pictures are available, in spectacular profusion, in a new collection entitled "Good King George's Glorious Reign," compiled by Jocelyn Oliver and introduced with a foreword by Hugh Walpole.

The book gives you an interesting and comprehensive review of the last 25 years in English history.

Here we have news photos covering everything from the funeral procession for King Edward to the dawning of London for King George's jubilee. There are wartime photos in abundance, pictures of the king's boyhood and youth, glimpses of his travels, his diversions, and his public functions, views of the other members of the royal family, and scenes showing the activities of his subjects at different stages in his reign.

The one objection that might be made is that—aside from the war—the camera seems to have caught only the brighter side of things. Some attention to breadlines, Indian riots, and the fighting in Ireland might have made the picture more realistic.

However, the criticism is a minor one; in the main, the book is a worthwhile collection of extremely interesting photographs.

Published by the Oxford University Press, it sells for $1.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Forcing Child to Fit Parental Ideal Often Works Harm.

Sometimes I feel it might be a good move to have printed leaflets setting forth the story of Procrustes, which old boy I have mentioned before.

He, you know, was the chap with the bed, no not a tub like Diogenes who carried the lantern, but a beautiful bed with carvings and satin quilts and an inner spring mattress with rose and lavender ticking. Oh it looked like a lovely bed, and just naturally the guest in the castle invited to spend the night would yawn and blink and say, "Why, thanks, mine good host, I think the secretary can get along all right tomorrow at the office."

And he'd undress and put on the bath pajamas this wily archend. Procrustes, say in and lay himself down to slumber.

But there was a catch in it. Back of the curtains stood a spy with a tape-measure. And after the guest was in bed this gent slipped out and did things.

"H'm," he'd say, "Only five-feet eight. Has to be stretched four inches."

Fitting the Mold
Then he whistled to the kitchen and up came four other fellows who carried a little dressing-down room where stood a rack. Then Adolphus was stretched until he measured six feet. Whether he was dead or not didn't matter. He fit the bed.

If, perchance, Adolphus or Mercutio or Bill measured six feet four, however, the measuring gentleman added a word to the kitchen. "And bring your axes," he suggested. Then off went the guest to the block to have his head or feet chopped off. He was, of course, very dead but this didn't matter either. He fitted the bed and his general host was satisfied. He was determined that his bed be perfect, and if his visitors didn't fit that bed, that was their fault.

Parents Complain
So you see how it is. So many parents write disconsolate letters to say their Johnnies or Marys don't fit their ideas of perfection.

Maybe Johnny won't fight and take his own part, or would rather study birds than play baseball.

Maybe Mary is set in her ideas and knows too well what she wants to study, in habits or preference or reactions they simply cannot quite match their parents' ideas. They can't fit the bed, so to speak.

Children can be made to fit in a way, and certain shaping up and conforming is good for them. But we must remember that individuals cannot possibly attain precisely the same standard, and parents' ideas are pretty standard.

The process of forcing them too strongly or suddenly may do them very source of ambition, of contentment, of spiritual life, to say nothing of self confidence. It is something to think about.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Trade Bad Carriage For Good

There is no doubt that a great deal of our awkwardness and stiffness of motion, and a lot of our athletic ineptitude, can be traced to the peculiar misconception of considering the waist line the natural dividing line of the human body and persistently coining such phrases as "above the waist," "below the belt," etc. The waist isn't your natural dividing line.

These words, from "Your Carriage, Madam!" by Janet Lane, seem worthy of consideration by any woman who wants a graceful body that will remain youthful and attractive through the years.

Miss Lane points out that every girl should locate the joint where her legs join her body. You find them by digging into the groin on a level with the tops of your leg bones. They are only a handspan apart and probably a lot farther from than you think.

Cy Blanton Again Bests Dizzy Dean

9-5 Victory Over Cards Puts Bucs Half Game From Second Place

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—Darrell Cy Blanton, Pittsburgh's ace right-hander, and Jerome (Dizzy) Dean clashed again Tuesday and as in their first engagement it was the rookie who came out on top as the Pirates defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 9 to 5, and advanced within half a game of second place.

In recording his eighth victory of the season against three defeats, Blanton held the champions in check with nine scattered hits. He was wild, however, passing four men and making three wild pitches, two of which figured in the Cardinals' runs. The defeat was Dean's fifth setback of the season as compared to six victories.

The Pirates got only eight hits off the St. Louis ace but they took advantage of his wildness to score four runs in each of the third and fifth innings. The final blow off Dean was Woody Jensen's home run into the stands in the sixth. Dean was lifted for a pinch hitter and Ed Heusser held the Bucs at bay during the remainder of the contest.

Dean's wildness when he walked two men to help fill the bases in the third netted the Pirates four runs with Pop Young hitting the climax blow—a double that cleared the sacks. In the fourth the Bucs again put across four runs on as many hits. Gus Suhr's triple driving two home.

Joe Medwick got four hits, including a triple, for a perfect day at bat while Pepper Martin went hitless for the first time in 24 games.

Dean even had trouble with his own teammates. He was peeved in the third when Umpire Cy Rigler ruled that a pitch to Vaughan was a ball. He was so sore over the incident that he seemed to let down on the slab in the next two periods and his mates took exceptions to the slow balls he was throwing. Eventually there was a mix-up on the bench, but Manager Frankie Frisch kept the argument from becoming serious.

In 1920, smallpox cost the lives of 17,405 persons in Mexico. A health campaign has been so successful that present figures show a 75 per cent decrease in this figure.

Holes in cheese are caused by the activity of gas-producing bacteria. The gas catches in the rubbery cheese and makes holes in it just as the gas from yeast makes holes in bread.

Indian doctors of Brazil use ants to sew up wounds; the wound is held together while the ant bites into the flesh. The insect is then beheaded, but the jaws do not release their hold.

That's the place to walk from, work from, and swing into sports from, if you would like to do these things easily and well—and not from up around your waist somewhere.

The posture authority continues. Then she outlines a test that a girl can make at home to determine whether or not her hips are faulty.

"Sit in a hard chair with your sitting bones pointing directly down, and your rib cage and head centered exactly over them. See if you can lift each leg in turn from the chair a little without shifting from one sitting bone to the other. Now stand up, keeping this same balance."

"If you can't move your legs freely without involving your upper body, or rock your upper body on its thigh hinges without involving your legs, it means that the strain of carrying yourself out of balance has so tightened up the surrounding tendons and muscles that your thigh joints are lashed together every which way instead of swinging free."

I think every woman should make Miss Lane's test. If your body doesn't measure up to the standards she sets, then by all means get busy with exercises that will loosen up stiff muscles and make you graceful.

KATHARINE STYKIHURST, beautiful, 20, is in love with MICHAEL HEATHEROE who runs a riding school. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother, BERTINE, is snobbish.

ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, has an unhappy love affair and is saved from suicide by young DR. JOHN KAYE.

SALLY MOON, local coquette, tricks Michael into an engagement, and when he tries to wriggle out, tightens her hold. Katharine helps Michael to win Sally and is broken-hearted.

She overhears two detectives talking for Michael's address and, thinking him in danger, rushes to warn him. Michael sets off with her in Katharine's car. He tells her he loves her and refuses to go away unless she comes with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIV

THE girl stared back at Michael Heatheroe, her pupils dilating oddly. "You win," she said quietly.

"Katharine..." His arms were around her now, his breath was on her cheek. "You mean—you'll actually marry me?"

She looked straight ahead, her hands gripping the wheel. "I'll do that."

The die was cast. She couldn't turn back now. She knew in her soul if she turned Michael over to those detectives she would be tormenting all her life long. She couldn't think of Sally Moon now—nor of anything else—

"Drive on then," the man cried excitedly. "We can get a special license in Connecticut."

Long afterward the girl thought some special madness must have possessed her that day. She could not remember quite clearly by what devious route they arrived at the shabby, shingled house in the little, sleepy village. The frayed clergyman who examined their papers did not seem to find the situation at all odd. He accepted them and their demand quite calmly.

As if in a dream the girl heard the words, "I, Katharine, take thee, Michael..."

A woman came out of the kitchen, wiping her floured hands, to sign the papers...

Then they were back in the car again, Katharine's hands on the wheel. The simple gold band, bought in that same sleepy town, glimmered against her finger.

It wasn't real. It couldn't be. Yet there was Michael beside her. And in the back of the car were the drug store packages, the forgotten library book, to remind her of home, of duties.

Katharine turned a scandalized face to his. "Bertine—my step-mother! She'll be expecting me back. She'll be half mad. What time is it?"

Michael consulted his watch. "Half past two."

HALF past two. And it had been 10 o'clock when Katharine had stepped out of the drug store into broiling Main Street. She was married now. She was this man's wife...

"Michael," she said frantically. "You must wait here. Is there a hotel or something? I'll go back to Innlock and get some money—throw some things into a bag."

She had promised to go with him, for better or for worse. In sickness and in health. Something wild and free within herself exulted at the thought. This lean, smiling young man was her husband. No one could take him from her.

He glanced away, avoiding her eyes. "Do you think I'm going to let you go now? We can telephone your stepmother..."

Suddenly it seemed to Katharine that if Bertine knew it would spoil everything. Bertine, prying and questioning, weeping perhaps, and talking of the shame and disgrace of it.

"No," she said gently. "But now we must plan what to do. Where to go. Shall we go west again—or is it—it would be uncomfortable for you?"

She asked this haltingly. Now that she was his wife, perhaps Michael Heatheroe would tell her why those grim men with badges were looking for him.

"No—not very," said Michael. If she hadn't known the affair was so serious, she would have sworn there was amusement lurking in his eyes.

"Katharine, can you realize it?" he asked huskily after a moment. "Yesterday I thought I was done for. Today you belong to me."

"I can't drive when you look at me like that," she murmured. She stopped the car and there was a murmuring interlude.

"Listen, Katharine," said Michael after a space. "You needn't go back to Innlock at all. I have some cash in my pockets."

"Idiot!" she told him. "I haven't any clothes."

"Well, I'll buy you some."

"With what?" she demanded, laughing.

He frowned. "You've married a poor man, my darling."

"As if that mattered."

SHE raised his hand to her lips and, with a spontaneous amazement in one always so cool and repressed, kissed him. His face burned a deep red. He said huskily, "Do you realize, girl, that's the first time you ever—"

"Ever what?" Her dark, burning blue eyes challenged him. Bertine, who complained of her stiffness and coldness, would not have recognized Katharine at the moment.

"The first time you ever gave me any tangible proof of your affection," said the man softly.

She laughed gayly. "I like that. Here I dash off in my oldest frock and marry the man and he says I give no tangible proof..." She broke off to regard him oddly. "Michael Heatheroe, I've said it before and I say it now again—do you know you don't talk in the least like a wild westerner?"

He laughed. "Oh, I've been to school, you know."

"I know, really, so little about you," she said, luxuriating in the

Mrs. Garrett Story and Miss Harriet Grace Story spent Tuesday in Shreveport, La.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sullivan have as house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sullivan and their mother, Mrs. Lillie Conway of Houston, Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan and their guests were Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Carter in El Dorado.

The Women's Missionary Society of the First Christian church held their regular monthly meeting on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. M. McWilliams on East Third street, with Mrs. Lloyd Spencer as joint hostess. The meeting opened with a hymn, followed by a prayer by Guy Holt. Mrs. H. C. Whitworth led the program of song and gave a most inspiring devotion. Mrs. B. L. Rettig opened the program with a poem, followed by a reading by Mrs. W. L. Carter. Mrs. W. F. Sauer gave a sketch of a Japanese church family. Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp read a paper entitled, "At the Cross Roads of the Continent." During the business period, the nominating committee named the following officers: President, Mrs. J. F. Gorin; treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Duckett; secretary, Mrs. Harry Phipps. During the social hour, the hosts served a tempting sandwich course with punch to 20 members and two guests.

Mrs. Laura Cain of Anacoco, La., and Mrs. Jodie Middleton of Devita, La., were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. E. Cain.

With Mrs. A. C. Kolb who is leaving soon to join Dr. Kolb in residence in Little Rock, as honor guest, Mrs. R. M. LaGrone was hostess on Tuesday afternoon to the members of the Friday Music Club at her home on North Hervey street. For the occasion, the spacious LaGrone home was aglow with a quantity of lovely roses and other summer flowers. The guests were greeted by the hostess the honoree, Mrs. J. C. Carlton, president of the Friday Music Club and Mrs. Fred R. Harrison. The afternoon was spent in pleasant conversation and a conversational review of the history of the Music Club from the time of its organization in '29 to the close of the present year's work, after which, the hostess assisted by Mrs. W. Y. Foster, Jr., served refreshing fruit punch and cookies. The good byes to Mrs. Kolb were made with deep regret, as her connection with the Music club has been very, very pleasant and most helpful.

On Wednesday evening, the Seniors will entertain the Juniors at a swim.

The perfect answer to the demand for wholesome and inspiring pictures this has swept the screen world recently is offered in "Sequoia," starting and unusual nature drama featuring Jean Parker and showing Thursday and Friday at the Saenger. Filmed amid the grandeur of Sequoia National Park, the outdoor drama is as new and fresh as mountain air in the extraordinary entertainment values. Literally "something new under the cinema sun," it is proving a sensation.

With Miss Parker and Russell Hardie as two young people who find love amid the grandeur of the giant trees in Sequoia National Park, there is also the most stirring drama of animal life ever filmed.

A deer and a mountain lion, two of nature's deadliest enemies, were photographed in their natural haunts from the time they were two weeks old until maturity. After they pass the "bottle fed" stage, their instinct to fight with each other is transferred to a battle with the wilds.

Hundreds of deer on migration are shown leaping windbreaks over twenty feet high on migrations to remote high Sierra regions; more than a dozen varieties of wild life are revealed in their natural haunts, including coyotes, bears, raccoons, eagles, rattlesnakes, fawns and small lion cubs.

The few human players in the supporting cast with Miss Parker and Hardie include Samuel Hinds, as a naturalist-writer; Paul Hurst, as a deer-killing poacher; Edward Brophy, as a forest ranger; and Willie Fung, as an oriental houseboy.

Much to the regret of their many friends, Mr. and Mrs. Tully Henry left Tuesday for their new home in Fayetteville, Ark., where Mr. Henry is connected with the Magnolia Petroleum company.

As special compliment to Miss Edith Boyett, who is leaving Thursday morning to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ruffin Boyett in Austin, Texas, Misses Willie Mae Johnson and Mildred King entertained at a very delightful shower at the home of the former on South Pine street. Games were enjoyed throughout the afternoon, and ice cream and cookies were served to about 14 young friends. For the occasion the Johnston home was bright and attractive with a quantity of lovely summer flowers. The honoree was showered with a number of attractive gifts, one being a real live rabbit, that will leave Tuesday with the owner for his native Texas.

Crowd Increases at Revival Meeting Here

The meeting being held with the Church of Christ, at West Fifth and Grady streets, is being well attended. The crowds are the largest in the history of the church and they are still growing. The church extends to all a very hearty welcome to attend these services and enjoy the lessons presented from the teaching of God's word.

The lessons are being presented in the spirit of the Lord, and in the simplicity of New Testament teaching. If you are a member of the church, of course, you should be attending in order that you may receive strength and encouragement in living the Christian life. If you are not a member of the church, you are also invited to attend and study the lessons given from time to time.

Mr. Boles spoke Tuesday night on the subject of Disobedience. The lesson was presented well.

Services begin promptly at 8 p. m. each night. Mr. Bradley is doing splendid work in the song service. He will appreciate your co-operation in that part of the worship.

Clue at Huntington, Ore.

One of the five thousand $20 bills paid to ransom nine-year-old George Weyerhaeuser, of the wealthy timber family, was spent Sunday night at Huntington, Ore., to buy a railroad ticket to Salt Lake City.

Huntington is midway between Baker, Ore., and the Oregon-Idaho line, some distance south of the Umatilla county where a speeding sedan and a low-flying unidentified plane aroused authorities Saturday night.

Sunday with reports that one or more of the kidnapers might be in that area.

Spotting of the ransom bill was confirmed by the Portland, Ore., bank to which it was remitted to be held for federal agents.

Describes Suspect

T. C. Hunter, Union Pacific agent in charge at the Huntington station, said that the bill, number L-1212816-A, had been taken by Telegraph Operator C. E. Hannon from a man who wanted a ticket on the train leaving there for Salt Lake City at 10:10 p. m. Sunday. Hannon said the man was about 30, five feet, 11 inches tall, smooth shaven, dressed in a tan suit and brown belt.

A police broadcast Sunday described one of the alleged kidnapers as "possibly a Greek or Macedonian, 35 or 40, five feet, 11 inches, or six feet, 165 pounds; hair eyebrows and complexion dark. Slender build, smooth shaven, noticeable lines about mouth. Wore gray felt hat and gray suit."

The other two in the police broadcast were described as older men, one five feet, 10 inches tall and the other five feet, nine.

The hour when the railroad ticket was purchased approximated that at which Oregon officers called off an intensive search for the tan automobile on the theory it had slipped through the immediate net set to trap it.

Little George Weyerhaeuser reentered Saturday to his home here, nearly eight days from the time he was "rescued" returning home from school.

Assurance that no one turning in a ransom bill would lose that much in cash was given by the Department of Justice.

"The department will take the bill and see that another is given to replace it," a spokesman said. "We also want to emphasize the importance of remembering from whom the ransom bill was received."

Regarding such steps, including whether he intended proposing a constitutional amendment. He declined to reply.

As on Friday when he made veiled suggestions for a constitutional amendment giving the federal government power to rebuke into interstate business, Mr. Roosevelt made it plain that he believed that little good could be accomplished with what had been left to him by the court's decision.

National Tourney to Open Thursday

Gene Sarazen Is Considered Big Favorite to Win

PITTSBURGH. (AP)—The old army game of putting the pressure on the other fellow has taken hold of the preferred players in the National Open golf tournament which starts Thursday at Oakmont.

The game works something like this: You walk up to the eight highly-fancied contestants and ask them individually who they think will win the title.

Modesty oozes out of each one of them.

For example, Gene Sarazen, winner of the title in 1922 and 1932, likes the chances of Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee and the lucky little campaigner looks puzzled and scowls his best scowl when informed that he's picked by no-less favored player than big Olin Dutra, the defending champion, and Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., one of the hottest of the pre-tournament favorites. Harry Cooper of Chicago, who tied with Tommy Armour, a fellow townsman, with 301 in the 1927 tourney here and then lost to Armour in the playoff, rates Picard as the man to beat, while Armour says Dutra is the golfer of the hour. Craig Wood, the belting blond from Deal, N. J., is sounding the drums for Armour but on the other hand Wood himself is the choice of the curly-haired Revolta.

Frisch Warns Dizzy Against Letting Up

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Manager Frankie Frisch Tuesday night warned Dizzy Dean, star pitcher for the Cardinals that he would be suspended and fined $5,000 if he repeated the squabble which nearly ended in a fist fight Tuesday between Dean and Joe Medwick, his teammate.

Discussion broke out in the fifth inning of Pittsburgh's 9-to-5 conquest of the Cards. Smarting under a four-run Pirate attack in the third inning, Dizzy told his mates they were quitting. They accused him of "laying down," and then the pitcher and left fielder squared off. They were separated by other players before blows were struck. Frisch later sided with the rest of the players against Dean.

War Department Suggests Plans

Most of the Money Would Go for Barracks at Army Posts

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Additional proposals for spending work relief money at army posts and national cemeteries were put forward Wednesday by the war department.

The department filed applications for $27,457,330 to carry on 41 projects. Most of the money would go for barracks, hospitals, shops, service clubs and other improvements at army stations in Hawaii and the canal zone. The rest would be spent at various points in 14 states.

Another batch of applications presented by the department Tuesday asked $27,854,733 of work relief funds. Officials asserted the projects to be financed with this would be "self-liquidating" because the government would save rent and heavy maintenance costs.

Meanwhile, state highway departments learned how much of the $400,000,000 already set aside for highway construction and grade crossing eliminations they will have to spend. Secretary Wallace divided this amount among the states, Tuesday, making half of it available for streets and highways and half for eliminating grade crossings. The state highway departments must submit detailed programs outlining what they intend to do with the money.

and warned him he would be suspended and fined if he ever "let up" again.

"It was an unwarranted display of temper and a most unfair thing for him (Dizzy) to do," Frisch said. "He came in after the four-run inning and made stalling remarks about the ball club, describing it as lousy."

Dizzy, dressed in his street clothes, listened in contrite silence to the manager's tirade.

"I just lost my temper," he explained afterward. "They (the Cardinals) said I wasn't bearing down and goodness knows I certainly was giving all I had and it hurt me to have them say that."

THE NEW DEAL

prices and wages through an NRA code. In that period, John L. Lewis, hard-boiled president of the United Mine Workers, gained more through NRA than any other labor leader and built up his union until the coal miners now stand 90 per cent organized.

But the code and its price structure began to collapse months before the supreme court killed the NRA codes. Wage conferences broke down because northern coal operators refused to sign any wage scale without promise of sustained prices. Without production control and price control, they insist, there will always be price-cutting and wage-cutting.

Southern operators, with their traditional lower wage scale, objected to abandonment of wage conferences and opposed the Guffey bill. Steel companies, railroads, and public utilities—whose chief aim is to get cheap coal—also are against the Guffey bill. Lewis, faced with a collapse of his wage scale and a smashing blow to his union, had no choice but to call a strike. The present wage agreement expires June 15, about the worst possible time for a walkout, from the miners' viewpoint.

What Bill Provides

Now as to the bill introduced for the miners by Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania:

It would establish a National Bituminous Coal Commission of nine presidential appointees—two of them representing operators, two miners. The commission would regulate minimum and maximum mine prices in 21 coal-producing districts mapped out in the bill and fix production allocations. It would be expected to function more or less as the Interstate Commerce Commission does in regulating railroads.

Compliance would be obtained through a tax of 25 cents a ton at the mine, 99 per cent of which would be rebated to operators accepting and complying with the new bituminous coal code, which would operate under the NBCC.

The bill authorizes the secretary of the interior to sell bonds up to $300,000,000. The money would be used in co-operation with the NBCC for purchase of submarginal or other coal mines on lands to be held for the government as national bituminous coal reserve and to rehabilitate miners displaced in the retirement.

Tax to Pay Off Bonds

A tax of from 1 to 10 cents a ton of coal would be imposed to pay off the bond issue. (The aim is to conserve coal and meet a problem of "too many mines and too many miners.")

A new Bituminous Coal Labor would be created, with fairly drastic powers, and Section 7-A of NIRA would be written into law for the coal mines.

Whenever operators producing two-thirds of the national tonnage and union officials representing a majority of the miners agreed on a schedule of daily and weekly work hours, that schedule would become nationally effective.

In each district an agreement by similar percentages of the groups would establish the district wage scale.

Quotas Would Be Set

The district boards, made up of producers, would allocate production quotas to mines and also recommend minimum price schedules to the commission. Individual mine owners could appeal their quotas to the commission, which is authorized to inspect all books and records.

Marketing agencies also are encouraged and authorized in the bill. Coal operators recently have proposed amendments which would call for price-fixing at once, but would postpone the production control and reserve provisions while the NBCC studied them, with instructions to make recommendations to congress by January 1.

Consumers Find Fault

Consumers' representatives have objected to the bill, pointing out that the "public" will have only a bare majority on the commission over the four members representing a special interest and that the buyers' interest goes unrepresented.

Initiative as to production control and price-fixing rests with the industry and the question is raised whether adequate public review is provided.

The district boards are allowed to make their own rules of fair practice, which might lead to collusion that would fix prices up to the maximum.

Of course the bill, which declares that all production and distribution of coal affects interstate commerce, as traded by the American Liberty League and others as "unconstitutional." But that would be up to the supreme court. Nobody knows.

Archaeologists in Germany have uncovered a knife with a folding blade estimated to be at least 10 centuries old.

EGAD, JASON, DID I UNDERSTAND YOU TO SAY, ONCE, THAT CHICKENS WERE—AH—SHALL I SAY, AH—WERE A SOURCE OF CULINARY DELIGHT THAT APPEALED TO YOUR PERCEPTION OF THE APEX OF GASTRONOMY?—

IF SO, I WILL MAKE YOU A PRESENT OF TWO EDIBLE SPECIES OF THE GENUS CHICKTERIUS!

MISTAH MAJAH, EF YO MEANS CHICKEN, IN THEM DOUBLE-JOINTED WORDS, AH UNDERSTANDS YO IN ANY LANGWIDGE!—JES WRITE OUT, IN LAW TALK, THEY IS MINE, IN CASE AH IS STOPPED ON TH' WAY HOME, AFTER DAHK!

THE MAJOR CANT SEE 'EM EATING HIS CHICKENS, AND LAUGHING AT HIM, AT HOME!

OUT OUR WAY

ALL RIGHT, I'VE LOOKED AT 'EM! SOME YOUNGSTERS PLAYIN' IN OUR YARD, AND MAKIN' NOISE! NOW, WHAT AM I SUPPOSED TO DO? CHASE 'EM OUT, I GUESS. WELL, NOTHING DOING! KIDS WILL BE KIDS, AND I'M NOT CHASIN' WILLIE'S FRIENDS AWAY. IF I CAN STAND THEIR NOISE A LITTLE WHILE, I GUESS YOU CAN.

SURE! I CAN STAND IT A LITTLE WHILE! BUT, I HAVE TO LISTEN TO IT ALL DAY LONG. WILL ANY OF THE NEIGHBORS LET WILLIE PLAY IN THEIR YARD? OF COURSE NOT! BUT THEY ALL CAN PLAY HERE, 'CAUSE YOU CAN STAND IT A LITTLE WHILE. YOU GET ON MY NERVES WORSE THAN THE KIDS DO!

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

Thar She Goes

BOY, OH BOY, OH BOY, OH BOY, OH BOY.

OH, FOR SILLY SAKES.

WOT HAPPENED ???

ASK TH' SHARK!

WELL—WELL—WELL—DID YA GET MY RING?

YER DERN TOOTIN'!

WHERE IS IT?

IN MY PANTS.

At the End of Their Rope

HERES TH' RAFT, BUT WHERE'S KING GUZ?

GUZ IS GONE!

HIS DAUGHTER? SHE'S GONE, TOO.

Page Watson

UMY GOSH! EASY, THIS IS AWFUL. HE WAS GUNNA PAY US $200,000 AN' HE'S GONE.

COME ON, WE'LL SEE WATSON ABOUT THIS.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

KELSY, DRIVE US TO THE DELMAR CLINIC!!

BEG PARDON, SIR, BUT AN IMPORTANT WIRE CAME WHILE YOU WERE AWAY! I LEFT THE TELEGRAM FOR YOU IN YOUR APARTMENT!

UNLESS YOU ARE IN A DESPERATE HURRY, FRECKLES, I'D LIKE TO STOP AT MY APARTMENT FOR A MINUTE.

I'M IN NO PARTICULAR RUSH!

WON'T YOU COME IN? I MAY HAVE TO WIRE AN ANSWER TO THAT TELEGRAM!!

OKAY!

WHERE IS THE WIRE, KELSY?

HERE IT IS, SIR!
